More Articles in 2025

In 2024, Residência Pediátrica celebrated 13 years of existence. This "teenager" has attracted more than 11,500,000 visits to its website from readers interested in child and adolescent health issues. Pediatric residents and professionals in related fields have shown growing interest in the journal, contributing articles from across Brazil and even from abroad. In addition to residents, many health professionals consider RP essential reading in their workplaces and a valuable resource for training undergraduate and graduate students.

The journal's straightforward, clinically oriented approach has captivated numerous readers, earning RP the reputation of being "the pediatrician's journal."

There is strong demand for the various sections of RP, including clinical case presentations, review articles, original studies, and systematic reviews.

How do we maintain four issues per year?

We are always open to collaboration with new authors who honor us by submitting manuscripts on diverse topics in healthcare. While we would love to accept all submissions, rest assured that even manuscripts not selected for publication undergo thorough review by our expert reviewers, who provide detailed feedback on deficiencies and suggest improvements for future submissions.

The "pre-publication preview" of approved articles allows for faster dissemination, minimizing potential delays in publication that may arise beyond our control.

What's ahead for 2025? We look forward to announcing the results of the Junior Editor selection—a successful RP initiative—and to implementing the necessary restructuring of our editorial board.

We extend a heartfelt thank you to the entire RP Editorial Board and wish everyone Happy Holidays and a year filled with many exciting articles in 2025!
